

The Republic of Pirates Positions List:

Anne Bonny: An Irish pirate with a wealthy father who dresses like a man to disguise herself amongst the crew, and is closely aligned with Calico Jack and Mary Read.

Benjamin Hornigold: A British pirate who fought in the War of Spanish Succession and founded the Republic of Pirates with Henry Jennings, and is close with Blackbeard but holds a bitter rivalry with Sam Bellamy.

Black Caesar: An African chieftain who escaped slavery in a shipwreck and used a small fleet to amass a huge amount of treasure on a remote island; he is very closely aligned with Blackbeard.

Black Sam Bellamy: An English pirate who found fortune in the New World and employed advanced military techniques to evade capture by the British, and is close with Blackbeard but rivals with Benjamin Hornigold.

Calico Jack Rackham: A flamboyant English pirate with a reputation for being cunning and allowing women to serve on his ship - which gave him a close relationship with both Anne Bonny and Mary Read - and a tense relationship with his former captain, Charles Vane.

Charles Vane: An English pirate with a reputation for brutality who refused to obey even the loose rules of the Pirate Code and helped form the famed Flying Gang, though he holds no small amount of resentment towards another one of its members, Calico Jack, for mutinying.

Edward Blackbeard Teach: A fearsome English pirate who was famous for his imposing appearance in battle, often lighting his beard on fire to cause fear, and helped form the Flying Gang, becoming allies with Charles Vane, Black Caesar, Ben Hornigold, and Stede Bonnet.

Edward England: An Irish pirate who served in the War of Spanish Succession and is aligned with Henry Jennings, Ben Hornigold, Charles Vane, and Sam Bellamy.

Henry Jennings: An affluent British pirate who helped found the Republic of Pirates with Benjamin Hornigold after serving in the War of Spanish Succession, and is allied with Charles Vane, Hornigold, Sam Bellamy, and Edward England.

Israel Hands: A British pirate with a reputation for not taking things seriously who was originally captured by Blackbeard before being persuaded to join his crew.

Jean Bonadvis: A French pirate and former French navy man with a reputation for cruelty, and a rivalry with Benjamin Hornigold as well as a strong hatred for Turn Joe, who he believes is an agent of the Spanish.

John Cockram: An English pirate-turned-trader who provided a black market of commercial and illicit goods to the pirates of New Providence and has a casual alliance with Benjamin Hornigold and a testy relationship with Charles Vane.

John Martel: An English pirate who stole his own ship at a young age to fight in the War of Spanish Succession but suffered a turn of fortune after the war and decided to try his luck in the West and established himself successfully in Jamaica.

Mary Read: An English pirate who joined the military as a young woman disguised as a man and spent years gaining fighting experience with the British Navy, before being captured by pirates and convincing them to let her join their crew; she is closely aligned with Anne Bonny and Calico Jack.

Stede Bonnet: A wealthy English pirate who lived a successful domestic life in Barbados until he met Blackbeard and apprenticed for him, learning the skills he needed to become the “gentleman pirate.”

Thomas Barrow: An English pirate who was arrested for petty theft while captaining a slave ship, then escaped and became a moderately successful pirate whose main goal was to raise an army to wage war on France and Spain, though his efforts were not supported by other pirates.

Turn Joe: An Irish pirate who served in the Navy and gained military and navigational skills, and then was approached by the Spanish government with an offer to serve as a privateer and raid British ships.

Walter Kennedy: An Irish pirate who grew up as a pickpocket and enlisted in the Navy after the death of his father, where he learned about sailing serving under Woodes Rogers, who he mutinied against before finding his way to New Providence.

